

Important information about health plan due dates

The due dates that the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) extended on March 1, 2020, have returned to normal. The DOL extension offered people who qualified more time to take any of the following actions:

- Enroll in a COBRA plan.
- Pay past-due COBRA premiums.
- File and appeal claims.
- Sign up for a health plan during a HIPAA Special Enrollment period.

If you experienced a change in your life that made you eligible for a health plan due date extension, your due dates will return to normal one year from the date when you became eligible or 60 days after the government announces the end of the national public health emergency, whichever comes first.
